Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 08 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Becoming dry but feeling cold tonight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Staying cloudy with showery rain hanging on from earlier easing through the evening to become largely dry overnight. A few showers are possible again by dawn. Feeling cold with a risk of frost for prone spots. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Friday:
Sunny spells for some to start, with cloud elsewhere. Cloud becoming widespread from late morning with scattered heavy showers arriving too. Feeling chilly with light winds. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Perhaps cloudy at times on Saturday with the risk of some rain. Sunny spells and showers on Sunday. Turning dry with plenty of sunshine on Monday. Feeling cold throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.